The Connecticut Hospital Association (CHA) and the Perinatal Quality Collaborative are sponsoring, in collaboration with the Connecticut Department of Public Health, the Connecticut Maternal Child Health (MCH) Coalition and the Connecticut Chapter of the March of Dimes, a day long program entitled Improving Birth Outcomes: Approaches to Maternal Morbidity and Mortality on Thursday, January 7, 2016 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at CHA. CHA is located in Wallingford at 110 Barnes Road. The program will begin with the perspective of a patient who will share her experience with postpartum hemorrhage. This presentation will be followed by Dr. Elizabeth Deckers from Hartford Hospital who will discuss the national experience and current science on maternal morbidity and mortality. The morning presentations will end with an overview of CT’s perinatal landscape by DPH Deputy Commissioner Raul Pino, Marijane Carey, Manager of the MCH Coalition, and Jordana Frost, State Director of Program Services at the March of Dimes.

In the afternoon, there will be two panel presentations: one will focus on behavioral health, including perinatal depression, and the other will discuss the benefits of optimal interconception care and provide information on a MCH Coalition initiative addressing pre/interconception care.

The day will end with a wrap-up that will include how to use the information presented and participate in activities addressing the health and well-being of Connecticut’s women and children.

The program is being presented as part of the Partnership for Patients HEN 2.0 educational series.
