TRAVEL NURSES GIVE CONNECTICUT CHILDREN'S MEDICAL CENTER A TOP RANKING

HARTFORD, Conn. — Connecticut Children's Medical Center has once again received a national ranking; this time in the minds of pediatric travel nurses who rated the Medical Center as the fourth best hospital in the country to work.

AMN Healthcare, the largest allied health staffing company in the country, surveyed 4,000 travel nurses and asked them which hospital they would recommend to a fellow travel nurse. AMN—which is a vendor of Connecticut Children's—coordinated the survey in partnership with www.TravelNursing.com.

Not only was Connecticut Children's rated number four; it also was the highest ranked children's hospital in the country.

"This is quite an accomplishment for Connecticut Children's," said Theresa Hendricksen, RN, BSN, MS, vice president of clinical services and chief nursing officer. "'Travel nurses have a wealth of work experience to draw from and this praise is a direct result of Connecticut Children's collaborative team approach and family centered care that they enjoy while on assignment here.'"

This is the second national ranking Connecticut Children's has achieved within the past year. Last summer, the Medical Center's Division of Digestive Diseases, Hepatology and Nutrition, was named as one of the top 30 programs in the country by US News and World Report.
