

NEW TECHNOLOGY – Neal Lippman, M.D., an attending electrophysiologist at Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center, displays the Navistar RMT ThermoCool® catheter used to eliminate arrhythmias, or electrical disorders of the heart. Saint Francis was the second hospital in the United States to employ the new catheter, which maintains a far lower temperature than those previously used.

