

Opioid Use in Greater Hartford: Using the Data to Get the Big Picture

Wednesday, July 14, 2021

Webinar, 12:00 p.m.–1:00 p.m.

PROUD

PARENTS RECOVERING FROM OPIOID USE DISORDERS

This virtual educational activity is jointly provided by AXIS Medical Education and the Connecticut Hospital Association in collaboration with the Connecticut Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services.

Target Audience: Physicians, nurses, social workers, quality professionals, risk managers, healthcare executives, data professionals and analysts, behavioral health professionals, and all healthcare professionals working with women and families impacted by trauma and addiction.

Description: This program provides an overview of recent data trends related to opioid use disorder in Connecticut, with a focus on the Greater Hartford area. Factors contributing to the continued rise in overdose death rates in the Greater Hartford area and those related to substance use disorder will also be discussed.

Learning Objectives: At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be better able to:

- Describe the demographics and characteristics of individuals involved in drug overdose deaths in the Greater Hartford area during the most recent years.
- Discuss potential sources of quantitative and qualitative data related to the opioid epidemic.
- Explain factors related to substance use disorder, including social and economic conditions and access to care.

Recording: This activity will be recorded and archived for future participation.

YOUR FACULTY:

Mark Abraham is the Executive Director of DataHaven, a public service non-profit organization that partners with local and state government agencies, academic and healthcare institutions, foundations, and community organizations to collect, share, and interpret public information about Connecticut. In his role at DataHaven, Mr. Abraham has authored several dozen publications, and has established the DataHaven Community Wellbeing Survey program that has created an unprecedented source of statewide- and neighborhood-level information about public health, economic security, and other topics through live, in-depth interviews with over 35,000 randomly selected adults between 2012 and 2021. From 2014 to 2017, Mr. Abraham served as a Fellow of the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, as part of a national cohort focused on Racial Equity. He received an "Impact Award" from the Community Indicators Consortium, a national "40 under 40 in Public Health" award from the de Beaumont Foundation, and was elected to the Executive Committee of the National Neighborhood Indicators Partnership (Washington, DC). Mr. Abraham is a graduate of Yale University, and is pursuing graduate studies at the Yale School of Public Health.
