LEADERSHIP AND RESILIENCY
Navigating Through and Beyond COVID-19
Part Six of a Six-Part Virtual Series

The COVID-19 crisis illustrates that the current healthcare ecosystem is ill-prepared to deal with the type of healthcare needs that will be typical of the 21st Century. With an aging global demographic that will put more than half of the world’s population in the 60+ age group by 2060, the world’s real healthcare crisis has barely begun. The problem is not advances in medicine, the threat of future pandemics, or our ability to develop new pharmaceuticals and therapies. Greater challenges come from a healthcare ecosystem that pits payor against provider, and encourages gaming of the system, poorly orchestrated supply chains, and the enormous administrative burden on providers. Business visionary TOM KOULOPoulos, chairman of the Boston-based global futures think tank, Delphi Group, will explain the need to refocus every part of the healthcare ecosystem on what it is best at doing.

Mr. Koulopoulos is the author of 11 books, a frequent business commentator on MSNBC, a columnist for Inc.com, an adjunct professor at Boston University Graduate School of Management, an Executive in Residence at Bentley University, the past Executive Director of the Babson College Center for Business Innovation, and past Executive Director of the Dell Innovation Lab.
